VODAFONE ANNOUNCES NEW FLAT-RATE DATA ROAMING TARIFF

Vodafone continues to lead the mobile industry in reducing the cost of roaming in Europe

Vodafone announces today that customers in Europe will be able to surf the internet, check e-mail and access their business network when roaming abroad for a flat rate fee of only 12 for every day of use. The tariff will be available to Vodafone customers with mobile-enabled laptops from 1 July 2007 and will significantly lower the cost of data roaming for business customers and consumers alike.

This move is the latest development in Vodafone's drive to simplify roaming prices, making them more predictable and understandable for customers. The initiative draws upon two years' experience of the voice roaming tariff - Vodafone Passport - which has already attracted over 12m customers. Following the introduction of daily data tariffs in a number of Vodafone markets last year, Vodafone is now seeking to extend these benefits to customers throughout Europe who wish to use their laptops when travelling.

Besides the clear consumer advantages of reducing prices, Vodafone is continuing to invest in its networks to ensure customers also benefit from rapidly escalating data access speeds. Building on the strong platform of 3G, Vodafone has recently been rolling out faster technologies, such as HSDPA, which is now available in 11 European markets.

Commenting on the new tariff, Arun Sarin, Chief Executive, Vodafone, said:

Following the success of our Passport service, which has made it cheaper and simpler to call home over the past two years, we are now applying the same principles of value and simplicity for customers who need to access their corporate intranets, business e-mail or surf the web when they are abroad.

With high speed 3G networks already deployed in many European markets, ongoing investment in new technologies to increase download speeds and clear, effective tariffs, Vodafone should be the network of choice for those seeking to use their laptops when travelling.

Tariff details

The new tariff replaces complex per Megabyte tariffs with a simple flat fee for practically unlimited data usage. The daily tariff enables Vodafone customers to send or receive data at ease within a 24 hour period or one calendar day (depending on the Vodafone market) for a fixed fee of €12 (excluding VAT). The fixed fee covers consumption within either a 24 hour period or a calendar day, up to 50 MB of data, after which the customer's standard per-megabyte rate applies.

Vodafone will launch the tariff across the majority of its European footprint, including its principal European markets, on 1 July. It will be introduced into the remaining European markets soon thereafter.

As with Vodafone Passport there is no activation charge for opting into the daily roaming tariff.

The €12 (excluding VAT) flat rate tariff is applicable when a Vodafone customer is roaming on Vodafone subsidiary networks in Europe. Should a customer roam onto another network then standard per megabyte charging will apply.

Wholesale data rates

Vodafone also announces that from 1 July 2007 it will enter into reciprocal wholesale arrangements with any other European operator or operator Groups at a new lower wholesale rate for data roaming. In doing so, Vodafone is seeking to lower its own costs and increase overall activity in the data roaming market within the European Union. Vodafone expects this initiative to result in significantly lower data roaming costs for customers of both Vodafone and its competitors.

The new rates that Vodafone will offer other network operators are as follows:

for small sessions of up to a maximum of 200 Kb of data, the charge will be a maximum of €0.50 for sessions above 200 Kb, the rate will be €0.50 per Mb.

30 March 2007

VODAFONE ANALYST AND INVESTOR DAY

Vodafone Group Plc (Vodafone) is today hosting an analyst and investor day in London, which will focus on its Europe region and, in particular, its operations in Germany and the UK.

The day will be introduced by Arun Sarin, Vodafone's Chief Executive, with Vittorio Colao, CEO Europe and Deputy Chief Executive, then providing an overview of the Europe region. There will be presentations led by country CEOs Nick Read and Fritz Joussem focusing on Vodafone's operations in the UK and Germany, respectively.

The presentations will focus on two of the five strategic objectives set out in May 2006 – revenue stimulation and cost reduction in Europe and innovating and delivering on our customers' total communications needs.

Vodafone is addressing the continuing challenge of declining prices from intense competition and regulatory pressure on incoming call rates and roaming in Europe. In the quarter ended December 2006, programmes to stimulate usage have resulted in outgoing voice usage 22% higher year on year on an organic basis. In addition, there has been continued strong growth in data revenue primarily from business services and the increasing penetration of 3G devices, with underlying organic growth of over 40% year on year. Overall these drivers have compensated for the regulatory and pricing pressures in Europe resulting in organic service revenue growth of 2.1% year on year for the quarter ended December 2006. In the year ahead, the competitive and regulatory trends are expected to continue in the Europe region.

Vodafone is also focused on reducing its costs and continues to expect that, for the Europe Region (excluding Arcor) and common functions, capitalised fixed asset additions will be 10% of revenue in the year ending 31 March 2008. Operating expenses are also expected to be broadly stable for that year compared to the year ended 31 March 2006 on an organic basis, excluding the potential impact of developing and delivering new services and of any business restructuring.

UK

The presentations from Vodafone UK will highlight the progress being made with its strategy. In the second half of the last calendar year Vodafone UK refreshed its tariffs for both prepaid and contract customers, with the result that the quarter ended December 2006 showed an improvement in service revenue growth year on year compared with the quarter ended September 2006, on an underlying basis.

Vodafone UK management will highlight further improvement in the underlying service revenue trend, with year on year growth in the two month period to February 2007 of 4.8%, up from 3.3% for the quarter ended December 2006. This increase has been delivered by strong customer and usage growth, with outgoing total minutes of use increasing 28% year on year for the two month period ended February 2007.

As previously indicated, the impact of tariff changes and commercial policies being consistently applied throughout the year is that the EBITDA margin for Vodafone UK is expected to be lower in the second half of this financial year when compared to the first half. For the five month period ended February 2007, the EBITDA margin for Vodafone UK was 26.6%.

As well as highlighting the key elements of its strategy, Vodafone UK is also announcing several new initiatives. Today Vodafone UK and Asda are announcing a new partnership whereby Asda will use the Vodafone UK network to offer its own branded service.

Vodafone UK is also announcing a strategic partnership with DSG International PLC to provide mobility solutions to small business customers, with a particular focus on the SOHO customer segment. The strong growth in data cards and the mobilising of the internet have resulted in Vodafone UK seeking new channels to distribute its business products and services. The partnership will initially see 30 Vodafone Connectivity Centres integrated into PC World stores, further strengthening Vodafone UK's distribution channel to businesses.

Vodafone UK will also be presenting highlights of its enterprise business which has increased its market share of customers in the UK enterprise segment by four percentage points in the last twelve months to reach 46 percent, the highest within Vodafone's European footprint.

Germany

Vodafone Germany will be focusing on how it is executing its strategy and maintaining leadership in the challenging German market. With the effective price per minute reducing by around 25% per annum and the impact of regulated reductions in termination rates, Vodafone Germany is developing products and services to stimulate revenue growth. As well as recently introducing a number of new, larger minute bundles and flat rate offers, Vodafone Germany has continued to develop its Vodafone Zuhause product family, which now has over 2.1 million customers. Only one fifth of total voice minutes are currently carried by mobile networks in Germany, providing a significant opportunity for future revenue growth for Vodafone from fixed to mobile substitution.

Data revenue growth remained strong at 58% year on year in the quarter ended December 2006, driven by strong sales of Vodafone Mobile Connect data cards and hand held business devices, as well as a growing number of customers using the Vodafone live! portal.

Presentations today will also highlight how Vodafone Germany is enhancing its consumer data proposition through mobilising the internet with the development of partnerships recently signed by the Group with Google, MySpace, YouTube and eBay.

In addition to the Vodafone Germany management team, Harald Stoeber, Chief Executive Officer of Arcor, is also presenting. Arcor is the leading alternative telecoms provider in Germany and at the forefront of the development of the fixed broadband market with over two million DSL customers. Vodafone Germany and Arcor are working closely together to create synergies for the Group. Vodafone Germany is making further use of Arcor's backbone network, as well as Arcor's more extensive voice interconnection network for calls to the principal fixed line network in Germany. Both Vodafone Germany and Arcor are cross-selling fixed and mobile products to their respective customer bases. Presentations today will outline 50 million of cash savings already identified as a result of this increased co-operation.

Today's event will be broadcast live via a webcast available on the Vodafone website <http://www.vodafone.com/investor> beginning at 9.00am (UK time).
