Jim Cramer, Host:

Stocks that I look for that can survive in a big downturn uh, a recession downturn because we're tightening, or because we're not loosening fast enough include a lot of medical device stocks. One that I've found that's very exciting, that I've been buying it's been going down though for ActionAlertsPLUS.com, my charitable trust is Hologic, which is involved in a very exciting merger. I, I'd like to I've got Jack Cumming on the line. He's chairman and CEO. Maybe he can explain the synergies of the mergers and how it's gonna look and when it's gonna happen.

Jack, it's your airplane.

Jack Cumming, Chairman and CEO, Hologic:

Jim, thanks so much. I really appreciate it. And, uh, being with your, uh, Cramerica group, uh, all I can say is boo-yah.

Cramer:

Boo-yah. You, you gotta have a pretty decent excited deal coming, and you're gonna combine two great health care companies. Can ya tell people what the, uh, the promised land will look like when you're finished merging?

Cumming:

Well, when we finish merging, uh, we're going to have a company that has a billion-seven in sales. Uh, sixty percent of the revenue is gonna be from consumable products. Forty percent from capital equipment. We're gonna generate approximately four hundred and fifty to five hundred million in EBIT DA. We're gonna have the largest dedicated, uh, sales force in women's health here in the United States, with over four hundred and fifty people. We're gonna have another two hundred and fifty, three hundred people internationally.

Uh, we're gonna have we have a proven management team that has done acquisitions before, and integrated, so we don't see that as an issue. And we're gonna have nine number one brands in the market, selling specifically women's health products. So, it there's a lot of synergy there to leverage an OBGY [phonetic] Channel, the leverage of surgical and radiation oncology channel, and we've got a great product pipeline with Hologic to put some of our products now through the site tech s [phonetic], uh, surgical, uh, product line, uh, two to three years out.

Cramer:

All right, Jack. Uh, can you give me a sense you mention financing. As soon as I hear financing, and a takeover, I get worried. A lotta the companies that are involved in financing and takeovers have been hit mercilessly. Uh, are you worried about financing on the deal?

Cumming:

No, not at all. We have in place a firm, fully-committed financing line from your Alma Mater, Goldman Sachs. And there's no financial risk to completing this deal. Uh, there..

Cramer:

Oh

Cumming:

ya know, as you say, tightening in the credit markets: The only thing we would expect even minimally is additional interest costs. But it's a firm deal.

Cramer:

Excellent. That's Jack Cumming, chairman/CEO of Hologic. I think the idea of a one-stop amazing especially for demographics woman's health diagnostic company, is a winner. I've been buyin' it. I'm losing money on it. Full disclosure: I am down on it, but I think it works.

[sfx: bull moos]

Cramer:

Mad Money is back after the break.
