State Merger Messaging Points

Kentucky

Positive impact of technology and competition on consumers i.e. broadband and IPTV advances, competitive prices

Consumers seeking a real alternative to the dominant cable companies should see faster and more economical deployment of next-generation IP television networks and similar services. This is a result of AT&T's groundbreaking entry into IPTV coupled with BellSouth's extensive deployment of fiber networks for DSL and other broadband services.

The merger will allow for closer integration of the company's wireless, wireline, and IP products over one global IP network. This is critical as the industry moves forward with the convergence of the three screens that many customers rely on today—televisions, computers and wireless devices. AT&T is a leader in this area.

The merger will result in a more responsive and efficient company better able to provide new and improved services and products and offer to BellSouth customers the innovations developed by AT&T.

The merger will drive the next evolution in wireless technology and heighten wireless competition. It will allow integration of Cingular's IP network and offerings with its parents' IP wireline and IP broadband networks. As a solely owned company, Cingular will benefit from increased speed, effectiveness, responsiveness and efficiency.

The merger will combine investments and research in new technologies that can bring new services to consumers, including the potential for expanded broadband access in remote locations.

Benefits of merger to telecommunications infrastructure i.e. network safety and security

The merger will give business and government customers, including the military and national security agencies, a reliable U.S.-based provider of integrated, secure, high-quality and competitively priced services to meet needs anywhere in the world.

Enhanced capability for disaster response and recovery by combining the resources of both companies and making AT&T's specialized capabilities available to BellSouth.

Benefits of merger to state and local communities i.e. investment, jobs, community support

The combination of AT&T and BellSouth will enhance their well-known traditions of customer service and community involvement and investment.

AT&T has agreed to continue BellSouth's historic levels of charitable contributions and community activities. That includes the continued funding of charitable activities, economic development and education initiatives throughout BellSouth's nine-state service territory.

Cingular's headquarters will remain in Atlanta as will the combined company's Southeast regional telephone headquarters. AT&T has also committed to maintain the BellSouth state headquarters in each state.

Impact on Jobs

We anticipate that approximately 10,000 jobs will be identified as redundant as a result of the merger; those jobs will be phased out over about three years. This is on a base of over 300,000 employees at the combined company, including Cingular employees.

We have taken steps to minimize the impact on employees. For example, each of AT&T and BLS have put in place a freeze on hiring. That step, coupled with normal attrition (AT&T loses over 1,200 employees a month through normal attrition) will help minimize the number of layoffs that will occur as a result of the merger.

Return of Ma Bell

The merger of AT&T and BellSouth will not and cannot recreate the Ma Bell of old. To the contrary, the merger will create a company better able to compete across a range of converging and competitive services including video entertainment, broadband, wireless and voice services.

Ma Bell was the legally franchised, monopoly provider of largely circuit switched telephone service during most of the last century. Competition in those markets was a violation of the law.

The era of Ma Bell was devoid of any substantial cable industry, wireless, VoIP, the Internet, or satellite television. Telecommunications was a wired phone and video was an antenna on the roof. Today, communications is a competitive free-for-all in which AT&T faces many other companies using diverse technologies to compete for customers.

The Internet, cellular service, VoIP, cable telephony, WiFi and many other technologies that today give consumers numerous choices for communications services, did not exist then.

Since AT&T and BellSouth are not actual competitors in the local, long distance or video markets and because BellSouth is not a significant competitor with AT&T in the enterprise market, the merger will not reduce competition in any of those markets.

BellSouth has a good record regarding its commitments to Kentucky:

Historically, BellSouth has invested over $3 billion building its network facilities in Kentucky. It has invested $889 million in those networks since 2000 alone.

Edgar Filing: BELLSOUTH CORP - Form 425

For 2005, 90 percent of BellSouth's broadband deployment was focused in rural areas.

BellSouth has 6,346 fiber optic cable sheath miles deployed in Kentucky. That's the equivalent of reaching from Louisville to Tokyo, Japan if laid end-to-end.

BellSouth has installed DSL technology in 100 percent of its central offices so that over 81 percent of Kentucky households are DSL-capable.

Cingular this year will complete its two-year, $150 million network investment to expand coverage and services in Kentucky and Southern Indiana.

Cautionary Language Concerning Forward-Looking Statements

We have included or incorporated by reference in this document financial estimates and other forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. These estimates and statements are subject to risks and uncertainties, and actual results might differ materially from these estimates and statements. Such estimates and statements include, but are not limited to, statements about the benefits of the merger, including future financial and operating results, the combined company's plans, objectives, expectations and intentions, and other statements that are not historical facts. Such statements are based upon the current beliefs and expectations of the management of AT&T Inc. and BellSouth Corporation and are subject to significant risks and uncertainties outside of our control.

The following factors, among others, could cause actual results to differ from those described in the forward-looking statements in this document: the ability to obtain governmental approvals of the merger on the proposed terms and schedule; the failure of AT&T shareholders to approve the issuance of AT&T common shares or the failure of BellSouth shareholders to approve the merger; the risk that the businesses of AT&T and BellSouth will not be integrated successfully or as quickly as expected; the risk that the cost savings and any other synergies from the merger, including any savings and other synergies relating to the resulting sole ownership of Cingular Wireless LLC may not be fully realized or may take longer to realize than expected; disruption from the merger making it more difficult to maintain relationships with customers, employees or suppliers; and competition and its effect on pricing, spending, third-party relationships and revenues. Additional factors that
