RBS To Locate Global Banking Operations Centre In Amsterdam

Amsterdam will be a key financial centre for the RBS Group and host a new Global Banking Operations Centre Johnny Cameron

The Royal Bank of Scotland Group today announced that it would locate a new Global Banking Operations Centre in Amsterdam as part of its investment in the Netherlands if the RBS-led consortium banks are successful in completing their bid to acquire ABN AMRO.

The centre will act as a hub for the enlarged RBS Group's international cash management and Euro-currency processing.

Commenting on the investment plans, Chief Executive RBS Corporate Markets Mr Johnny Cameron said:

Amsterdam is one of the most attractive business locations in Europe and one of the world's leading financial centres. As the Government's recently launched Action Plan noted, the Netherlands has always been a financial centre with international character. That both attracts and impresses us and we support the wider aim to develop the Netherlands as a financial centre of excellence.

The proposed transaction with ABN AMRO would give RBS the opportunity to grow our presence in the Netherlands which we intend to do significantly. Along with many other advantages, it would give us access to a pool of very talented people with a range of specialist international banking skills and a high quality technology infrastructure.

If we are successful, the combination of RBS and ABN AMRO, would create a platform for growth in Amsterdam. The first stage in this process is to locate a new Global Banking Operations Centre in Amsterdam.

The new centre would form the hub for a number of functions critical for the success of the combined RBS/ABN AMRO group. The new centre is expected to become the base for:

The international cash management and Euro-clearing activities for the combined RBS/ABN AMRO group worldwide, and be a centre of excellence for Euro-denominated Treasury functions.

A key component of RBS Euro-denominated middle and back office activities, supporting the enlarged RBS Global Banking & Markets business and complementing its existing global operating model.

RBS's aim is to become the leading Euro payments organisation run from Amsterdam. The advent of the Single Euro Payments Area and the proposed combination of our two organisations creates a significant opportunity to achieve this.

Taken together this means that we anticipate growing and investing from a Dutch base and with a Dutch staff population that is extremely attractive to us.
