NEWS RELEASE

Federal Court Protects Shaw's Customers
(and John and Jane Doe's) Privacy

Calgary, AB, March 31, 2004 The Federal Court of Canada has confirmed the position taken by Shaw Communications Inc. (Shaw) that it is not required to disclose personal information about its Internet customers to representatives of the Canadian Recording Industry Association (CRIA). The decision of Mr. Justice von Finkenstein of the Federal Court of Canada, issued today, upholds and defends the privacy of Canadian Internet users.

We are very pleased with this decision and we know our customers will be equally pleased. This is a great victory for our customers who have embraced the Internet, said Jim Shaw, CEO, of Shaw Communications.

The Court concluded that CRIA had not established that the public interest for disclosure outweighs the privacy rights of our Internet customers.

That is exactly the position that we took in Court. We spearheaded the initiative to protect customers' privacy rights and we think that was the right thing to do, said Peter Bissonnette, President of Shaw.

Shaw Communications Inc. is a diversified Canadian communications company whose core business is providing broadband cable television, Internet and satellite direct-to-home (DTH) services to approximately 2.9 million customers. Shaw is traded on the Toronto and New York stock exchanges (Symbol: TSX: SJR.B, NYSE: SJR).
