Edgar Filing: NEXUS TELOCATION SYSTEMS LTD - Form 6-K

In February 2003 Nexus sold its subsidiary NexusData Inc., through which Nexus was formerly engaged in the automated meter reading industry. This transaction resulted in an $8.5 million one-time, non-cash capital gain.

During the reported period, Nexus significantly improved its financial stability by taking several measures including equity investments for an aggregate of $4.5 million by a group of investors led by DBSI Investments Ltd.- Nexus controlling shareholder, the conversion of a $723,000 convertible debenture by AMS Electronics Ltd and the restructuring of approximately $4.0 million debts to the Company's bank achieved mainly by converting a $3.0 million short-term credit into a long-term loan.

The execution of a cost reduction plan enabled the Company to improve its results from continuing operations despite the reduction in revenues, which was mainly attributable to the overall slow-down and political uncertainties in Venezuela.

A significant increase in revenues from the Stolen Vehicle Recovery services business in Argentina, operated by Nexus subsidiary Tracsat.

The Company presented, for the first time, its financial statements under the US Generally Accepted Accounting Principles, based on which it recorded $1.0 million of financial expenses due to inducement with respect to the conversion of a convertible debenture, as well as a $400,000 amortization of deferred stock compensation. Such deferred stock compensation from 2003 is expected to result in $567,000 of additional non-cash expenses during 2004 and 2005. However, according to US Generally Accepted Accounting Principles, these expenses do not have any effect on the Company's total shareholders' equity.

Due to the abovementioned events the Company presented at the end of 2003 a significant improvement in total shareholders' equity of $11.3 million as compared to the end of 2002.

Since April 2003 the Company has focused on the Stolen Vehicle Recovery markets and increased its activity as an operator and service provider. Consequently, subsequent to the reported period and following the announcement on March 10, 2004, the Company signed a definitive agreement in May 2004 to purchase 100% of the issued share capital of Pointer (Eden Telecom Group) Ltd. in exchange for shares and warrants of Nexus. Such issued shares and warrants are expected to equal approximately 26% of the issued share capital of Nexus on a fully diluted basis, post transaction. The closing of the transaction is subject to the approvals of banks and other governmental authorizations. After the acquisition of Pointer and together with Nexus' operation in Argentina, the Company and its subsidiaries will directly serve above 70,000 subscribers not including its sales to other operators in Venezuela, Russia and others countries.

Arik Avni, CEO of Nexus, said "We feel that the acquisition of Pointer together with the consistent increase in our subscriber base in Argentina better positions us as a Stolen Vehicle Retrieval service provider. We also believe that we have built the building blocks to achieve operating breakeven results in 2004, and we are looking forward to leveraging our actions to other opportunities mainly in Latin America.

Yossi Ben-Shalom, Nexus' Chairman of the board, commented: "In light of the challenges the Company had in 2003, we are pleased with the achievements of the Company and the acquisition of Pointer. 2004 should be the year in which we start to capitalize on those achievements.

Nexus Telocation Systems Ltd. develops, manufactures and markets low energy and cost effective wireless communications and location based information systems through the application of digital spread spectrum technologies deployed in Stolen Vehicle Retrieval applications.
