 1. Internet IP peering service is one of Chunghwa's services and is not regulated by Regulations Governing Network Interconnection among Telecommunications Enterprises. Relevant fee is set according to Administrative Regulation Governing Tariffs of Type I Telecommunications Enterprises and is reported to NCC for approval afterward. The alternative player's argument stated in the report does not reflect the essence of the regulation.
 2. Internet IP peering service, categorized as value added service, is loosely regulated and relevant fee is set under business negotiation internationally. If networks of both sides are of the same scale, they enjoy reciprocal interconnection for free. If it is not the case, the smaller ISP should pay relevant fee to the larger ISP. The mechanism encourages the industry development and fair competition among players and enhances consumers' benefit in the long term.
 3. The IP peering criteria set by Chunghwa was referred to the international standard and based on the negotiation with alternative players in 2004. Compared to the criteria adopted by international players to enjoy the reciprocal interconnection, that of international standard set by HiNet is quite loose already.
