Nomura Reports First Quarter Financial Results

Solid revenues from core businesses amid challenging market environment

Retail client assets continued to climb as efforts to transform business model start to deliver tangible results

Asset Management reported strongest revenues since quarter ended Sep 2007, driven by expansion in assets under management and dividend income

Wholesale revenues remained strong on solid performance in Global Markets despite lower volatility and market trading volumes

Tokyo, July 29, 2014 Nomura Holdings, Inc. today announced its consolidated financial results for the first quarter of the fiscal year ending March 31, 2015.

Net revenue in the first quarter was 370.8 billion yen (US$3.7 billion)¹, income before income taxes was 51.7 billion yen (US$510 million), and net income attributable to Nomura Holdings shareholders was 19.9 billion yen (US$196 million).

We reported solid net revenue from our three core businesses in the first quarter as Retail and Asset Management posted higher revenues compared to last quarter and Wholesale revenues remained resilient, said Koji Nagai, Nomura's Group CEO.

Retail client assets climbed to 95.3 trillion yen, the second highest level ever, highlighting progress in the transformation of our Retail business model. Asset Management had its best quarter since September 2007 as assets under management continued to grow and the Taiwanese asset management firm we acquired in April contributed to earnings.

Wholesale revenues were roughly in line with the previous quarter despite challenging market conditions. Global Markets continued to deliver solid revenues and we won a number of investment banking mandates in areas where we choose to compete.

Looking ahead, we will continue to meet the changing needs of our clients and pursue new business opportunities by connecting markets east and west as Asia's global investment bank to deliver value-added products and services and contribute to economic growth.

From the first quarter, Nomura commenced disclosure of net inflows of cash and securities, which replaces net asset inflows reported to date. The new indicator makes it easier to track actual flows of cash and securities, giving a more accurate indication of the growth of client assets.

Last quarter, net inflows of cash and securities was negative 365.8 billion yen, but in the first quarter it turned positive to 472.9 billion yen. Retail client assets climbed to 95.3 trillion yen at the end of June, the second highest level ever, supported by market gains.

Net inflows into investment trusts increased for the third straight quarter and discretionary investments and insurance products saw strong growth, reflecting a greater focus on making proposals based on an understanding of each client's individual life plan and their specific needs.

Global Markets revenues remained strong despite lower market volatility and volumes. Fixed Income had a relatively solid quarter as Credit and Securitized Products offset a slowdown in Rates. Equities revenues increased amid lower market volumes, driven by a steady performance in Cash Equities and an improvement in Derivatives.

Internationally, net revenue declined from the strong prior quarter, but increased in each region on a year on year basis.
