1. The level of cash and bank deposit balances of the Group and its changes for the three years ended 31 December 2018;
2. The historical amounts of the super short-term commercial papers issued to institutional investors in the PRC through the inter-bank bond market for the three years ended 31 December 2018; the anticipated increase in cash balances (unused proceeds) arising from the possible financing plans and financing scale (including the issuance of corporate bonds and/or super short-term commercial papers, etc) for the coming three years ending 31 December 2019, 2020 and 2021, which will result in corresponding increase in the demand for deposit services;

REASONS FOR AND BENEFITS OF ENTERING INTO THE RESPECTIVE FINANCIAL SERVICES FRAMEWORK AGREEMENTS

1. Realisation of centralised capital management and enhancement of capital management efficiency: Relying on the account management system of China Telecom Finance and its industry capabilities as a deposit-taking financial institution, the Group is able to achieve centralised capital management for member units at all levels which have been otherwise dispersed in different commercial banks. Based on the management needs of the Group, China Telecom Finance provides a customised solution for centralisation, deposit and management of capital funds, enabling the Group to withdraw funds to meet its flexible funding needs at any time, in a timely and compliant manner and without any restriction.

2. Realisation of the maximisation of cost and operational efficiency: Serving as a platform for internal settlement, fund financing and capital management among the Group, China Telecommunications Corporation and the CCS Group, China Telecom Finance provides deposit services, loan services and other financial services to facilitate internal settlement among all member units of the Parent Company (some of which are also customers of the Group) and to shorten the time required for fund transfer and turnover. Compared with the current approach that all member units individually arrange settlement through the bank accounts opened with respective commercial banks, China Telecom Finance can effectively improve the efficiency of fund settlement and collection between two parties. Through various measures to enhance the efficiency of internal settlement, China Telecom Finance can reduce the Group's cost of capital and help to realise the maximisation of cost and operational efficiency.
3. Full understanding and familiarity with the business needs of the Group: As China Telecom Finance only provides financial services to the member units of the Parent Company, it has a more direct and in-depth understanding on the telecommunications operation and communications services industry. China Telecom Finance is familiar with the capital structure, business operations, capital requirements and cash flow model of the member units of the Parent Company (including the Group), enabling it to be in a better position to anticipate the Group's funding needs. It thereby allows the Group to more effectively allocate capital among subsidiaries and manage the existing funds and cash flow. Accordingly, China Telecom Finance can at any time provide flexible and convenient services to the Group which is more tailored to the specific needs of the Group at a lower cost and enables the Group to have a stable supply of financial services in the ordinary and usual course of business.
4. Provision of favourable commercial terms: As a professional centralised capital management platform, China Telecom Finance will generally be able to provide the Group with transaction terms such as interest rates and fee rates no less favourable than those terms offered by the major cooperative commercial banks of the Group. Under normal circumstances, the deposit interest rates offered by China Telecom Finance to the Group shall not be lower than those offered by the major cooperative commercial banks for the same type of deposit services and for the same period and the loan interest rates shall not be higher than those offered by the major cooperative commercial banks for the same type of loan services and for the same period.
5. Additional option for financial services provider: The respective financial services framework agreements are non-exclusive agreements and do not limit the Group's rights in engaging any other banks or any financial institutions to satisfy its need for financial services. Therefore, entering into the financial services framework agreements will provide the Group with an additional financial services provider and also encourage all financial services providers to provide more competitive terms to the Group. Under the same conditions, giving priority to China Telecom Finance is also in the interest of the Group.

The Group, China Telecommunications Corporation and the CCS Group have full discretion to freely select financial services providers to meet their financial service needs, and compare the rates and transactions terms offered by China Telecom Finance with those offered by other major cooperative commercial banks in accordance with their actual business needs. Therefore, the transactions contemplated under the respective financial services framework agreements are based on the actual business needs and are entered into in the ordinary and usual course of business of the Group, and are on normal commercial terms or better, and the agreement terms and conditions are fair and reasonable, and do not restrict member units to choose other commercial banks to meet their financial service needs. All member units will have one more choice of financial services provider which can encourage respective financial services providers to provide more competitive and attractive terms for financial services. For the reasons stated above, the transactions contemplated under the respective financial services framework agreements are in the interests of the Company and its shareholders as a whole.
