Edgar Filing: Gannett Co., Inc. - Form DEFA14A

Launched and grew the USA TODAY NETWORK, the largest local-to-national news organization in the country, now with 109 local markets integrated with the company's national premium brand

Grew digital audience and engagement within the USA TODAY NETWORK, finishing 2018 with more than 500,000 paid digital-only subscribers and ranking #1 in mobile web unique visitors in the News and Information category¹

Built a best-in-class digital marketing solutions business with the acquisitions of ReachLocal, SweetIQ and WordStream, and the launch of LOCALiQ, a data-driven marketing solutions brand

Carefully managed the company's cost base to maintain profitability despite industry challenges, reducing annual operating expenses by more than $820 million since 2015² (including consolidating 13 production facilities), while maintaining a commitment to the highest journalistic standards and continuing to produce Pulitzer Prize-winning content

Gannett's strategy is delivering financial results

Gannett has had stable margins and positive cash flow generation while transitioning to a digitally-led product and revenue model

Achieved advertising and marketing services revenues of $1.7 billion in 2018, with $781 million of digital advertising and marketing services revenues

Strong digital contribution as of year-end 2018, 36% of total revenue and 47% of advertising revenue was digital, up from 26% and 29%, respectively, in 2016

Profitability is in line with industry peer group³

The company's digital marketing solutions business is a growth engine and has demonstrated its potential as a meaningful contributor to profitability

ReachLocal adjusted EBITDA margins increased to 12% in 2018, resulting in double-digit adjusted EBITDA margins being achieved several quarters ahead of expectations⁴

The company's strong balance sheet, with a net debt to 2018 EBITDA ratio of 0.8x, well below its peer median, is providing the financial flexibility to continue executing its digital transformation

Gannett has maintained a clear, consistent and balanced approach to capital allocation, focused on returning capital to shareholders and investing in Gannett's future

Since becoming an independent company in mid-2015, Gannett has returned $324 million to shareholders via dividends and share repurchases delivering a higher and more stable total shareholder return than the majority of its peers, and the highest total capital return of any of its peers when measured as a percent of enterprise value

Gannett's detailed strategic plan is expected to result in greater than 60% of revenues coming from digital by 2023, driven by a deeper penetration of Gannett's local client base with its digital marketing solutions, and 1.5 million paid digital-only subscribers by 2023. Revenues should stabilize over the 5-year period, which, combined with stable to increasing margins, is expected to result in significant shareholder value creation

Gannett's board and leadership possess the experience, skills and vision to drive value creation

Gannett's director nominees are fully independent and have experience and expertise in areas that are critical to Gannett's operations and digital transformation, including finance, business development and strategic planning, M&A, digital media, journalism, marketing and advertising, technology and human resources

Gannett has best-in-class corporate governance policies and practices, ensuring effective oversight and accountability to shareholders

Executive compensation is aligned with the execution of the company's transformation strategy and shareholder value creation, with incentives that are heavily weighted on the delivery of financial results (with a significant portion at risk) and include specific digital goals

Gannett has an experienced leadership team with a complementary mix of institutional knowledge as well as outside perspectives

MNG and its majority shareholder Alden Global Capital are pursuing a self-serving agenda to take control of Gannett via a misguided two-pronged approach

MNG's unsolicited proposal is NOT REAL

Despite having longstanding business relationships with Gannett, MNG did not seek to engage with Gannett prior to leaking and then publicly disclosing its unsolicited proposal in January 2019

2 days after receiving MNG's proposal, Gannett invited MNG to meet with Gannett's management and 2 independent directors, but MNG declined multiple meeting dates and refused to otherwise respond to Gannett's questions about how it would finance the transaction it had proposed and address other closing risks. MNG only accepted Gannett's invitation to meet after Gannett's board rejected MNG's proposal on the grounds that it is not credible and undervalues Gannett

During a meeting on February 7, well over 3 weeks after MNG announced its proposal, MNG admitted that it had not yet reached out to any financing sources and was dismissive of Gannett's other questions about the viability of its proposal

Now, more than 3 months after submitting its unsolicited proposal, MNG has still not secured financing

MNG acknowledges that it doesn't have a financing commitment, and argues that it needs to enter into an NDA in order to get one; however, this is simply not true

Gannett's financial information is publicly available, and committed financing is often obtained based upon such information

The real issue preventing MNG from obtaining financing is that the pro forma gross leverage of the combined company would be more than 4.0x 2018 EBITDA (or more than 4.5x 2018 EBITDA including pensions)⁶ - a leverage level that approaches Gannett's distressed peers

The Oaktree letter that MNG has been touting (but has not released publicly) amounts to nothing more than an assertion from Oaktree that hypothetically, a debt financing package can be arranged. But that assessment is not realistic

Oaktree does not suggest in the letter that it would even participate in the financing, and indeed the amount needed to finance the transaction far exceeds any amount that Oaktree's distressed debt fund could reasonably be expected to provide itself

The fact that after more than 3 months, MNG can still present nothing credible on financing validates Gannett's concerns; MNG's proposal is simply not actionable

In addition, MNG has continued to gloss over basic critical questions regarding its proposal

MNG has yet to address the impact of potential antitrust issues

MNG has still proposed no pathway for resolving pension-related risks

MNG gives conflicting messages about its ultimate goal - does it want to be a buyer or a seller? It touts its $12 proposal, but hasn't launched a tender offer and references conducting a strategic review if its nominees are elected. Does MNG prefer that someone else buy Gannett? Is the review just a ploy to force Gannett to acquire MNG?

All of MNG's nominees have irreconcilable conflicts of interest

All 6 of MNG's board nominees are highly conflicted given their close ties to MNG and Alden

All of MNG's nominees link back to Health Freeman, president and founding member of Alden Global Capital

3 nominees are directors or officers of MNG, a direct competitor to Gannett

4 nominees serve on the board of Fred's, Inc., where Alden is the controlling shareholder

4 nominees have other longstanding business and/or personal relationships with each other and/or with Alden co-founder Randall Smith

MNG's nominees would not bring additive skills or experience to the Gannett board and would reduce the quality of Gannett's board in terms of diversity, skills and experience

MNG and Alden have a record of diverting assets and destroying value

At Fred's, where 4 of MNG's nominees currently serve as directors, the share price has decreased 92% since Alden acquired a significant stake in December 2016, representing the destruction of approximately $360 million of shareholder value, despite operating in a steadily growing market⁸

Another Alden portfolio company, Payless ShoeSource, has filed for bankruptcy twice in 2 years, and now plans to close all of its more than 2,000 stores in the U.S.

Recent litigation between MNG and its largest minority shareholder, Solus Asset Management LP, demonstrates that MNG has siphoned value to Alden, while crippling its newspapers through value-destructive actions

According to the lawsuit, MNG has diverted hundreds of millions of dollars from its newspapers into Alden ventures that have no connection to its media business⁹

In its response, MNG admitted to making a number of investments with diverted assets, including investing $248.5 million of workers' pension funds in funds controlled by Alden and investing $158 million for a 24.8% stake in Fred's, Alden's largest single holding.

According to recent reports, Alden is also currently being investigated by the U.S. Department of Labor for the management of its pensions¹¹

Electing MNG's nominees would jeopardize the value of shareholders' investment by transferring control of Gannett to MNG and Alden without any guaranteed compensation, let alone a control premium

Gannett believes MNG cannot complete the transaction it proposed, and would not pursue the transaction if it gained control of the Gannett board.

Indeed, MNG's proxy fight is a way of taking control of Gannett without having to pay shareholders anything ever.

MNG's investor presentation indicates that if MNG were to gain board control, MNG would initiate a strategic review, the outcome of which is entirely uncertain.

MNG and its conflicted nominees have no clear strategy for operating Gannett during this review.

MNG's disclosed operating plan shows only that it will seek to extract cash from Gannett's assets and increase short-term cash flows with actions that will likely destroy Gannett's long-term value potential.

Given MNG's and Alden's record, and the irreconcilable conflicts of interest of MNG's nominees, how can shareholders trust that MNG won't pursue self-dealings with Alden rather than invest in the business? How can shareholders trust that Gannett won't become the next Fred's or the next Payless?

The Gannett board of directors unanimously recommends that shareholders vote FOR ALL of the company's highly qualified, fully independent director nominees on the WHITE proxy card today.

The Gannett Annual Meeting of Shareholders is scheduled to be held at 8:30 a.m. ET on May 16, 2019, and shareholders of record as of the close of business on March 18, 2019 will be entitled to vote at the Annual Meeting.
