Item 8.01 Other Events.

On June 23, 2016, The AES Corporation (the “Company”) addressed a June 20, 2016 ruling by the Supreme Court of Ohio. On that date, the court issued an opinion in the appeal of the current electric security plan of The Dayton Power and Light Company (“DP&L”), the principal subsidiary of DPL Inc. (“DPL” and, together with DP&L, the “Subsidiaries”), which had been approved by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (“PUCO”) for the years 2014-2016 (the “ESP”) and which, among other matters, permitted DP&L to collect a non-bypassable service stability rider equal to approximately $9.2 million per month for each of those years. In the attached opinion, the court stated briefly, without expanding upon the basis, that the PUCO’s approval of the ESP was reversed on the authority of one of the court’s prior rulings in a separate case not involving the Subsidiaries.

Under Supreme Court of Ohio rules, the court is expected to issue a mandate with respect to its ruling within 10 days of the date that the opinion was issued, which may provide clarity on the Subsidiaries’ options in response to the ruling. If such options prove to be unavailable, the loss of the service stability rider is expected to have a material impact on the Company. However, the Subsidiaries do not pay dividends to the Company and therefore, the loss of the service stability rider would not impact expectations for Parent Free Cash Flow. The Company’s 2016 guidance and 2017-18 expectations were provided on May 9, 2016 and are not being updated at this time.

Additional information about DP&L’s February 22, 2016 filing with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio for a new electric security plan beginning January 1, 2017, is included in the Annual Report on 10-K for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2015 filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission. A copy of the Supreme Court of Ohio’s opinion on the ESP case referenced herein is attached as Exhibit 99.1 to this Current Report on Form 8-K.
