March 13, 2009

Dear Colleagues,

Earlier this week, we announced our merger with Schering-Plough to create a new, stronger global healthcare leader uniquely positioned for success with a formidable research and development pipeline, a significantly broader portfolio of medicines and an expanded presence in key international markets.

Many of you may have questions about what this merger will mean for our function, and for your work. First of all, it's important to remember that we are still separate companies, and will remain so until the transaction closes later this year. We still need to deliver on our commitments and we still need to remain focused on our goals, including our efforts to support the successful on-time implementation of COMET in the U.S., FP&A Phase 1 globally, and global Hire-to-Retire.

In spite of this, there will be initiatives we slow down, delay, or no longer pursue to allow us to thoughtfully integrate our companies. I will share more information on this topic at our next Town Hall meeting. I encourage all of you to attend to hear more about what our combination with Schering-Plough will bring to our mission.

Mergers are exciting and challenging at the same time. Success is driven by attitudes, coordinated effort, and good planning. We will be prioritizing a rapid integration and focus so that we can quickly move forward as a single company that benefits from our combined capabilities, products, pipeline, and people.

Finally, I want to thank the individuals who directly worked on the analysis, financing, and reviews leading up to Monday's announcement. These teams have made a tremendous effort, and they deserve our sincerest gratitude.

I hope you share with me the same level of excitement and expectation about this combination. I am sure you are proud to be part of this significant milestone in the history of our company and will join me as we create a new, stronger healthcare leader.

Regards,
Peter

Forward-Looking Statements

This communication includes “forward-looking statements” within the meaning of the safe harbor provisions of the United States Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Such statements may include, but are not limited to, statements about the benefits of the proposed merger between Merck and Schering-Plough, including future financial and operating results, the combined company’s plans, objectives, expectations and intentions and other statements that are not historical facts. Such statements are based upon the current beliefs and expectations of Merck’s and Schering-Plough’s management and are subject to significant risks and uncertainties. The following factors, among others, could cause actual results to differ from those set forth in the forward-looking statements: the possibility that the expected synergies from the proposed merger of Merck and Schering-Plough will not be realized, or will not be realized within the expected time period, due to, among other things, the impact of pharmaceutical industry regulation and pending legislation that could affect the pharmaceutical industry; the ability to obtain governmental and self-regulatory organization approvals of the merger on the proposed terms and schedule; the actual terms of the financing required for the merger and/or the failure to obtain such financing; the failure of Schering-Plough or Merck stockholders to approve the merger; the risk that the businesses will not be integrated successfully; disruption from the merger making it more difficult to maintain business and operational relationships; the possibility that the merger does not close, including, but not limited to, due to the failure to satisfy the closing conditions; Merck’s and Schering-Plough’s ability to accurately predict future market conditions; dependence on the effectiveness of Merck’s and Schering-Plough’s patents and other protections for innovative products; the risk of new and changing regulation and health policies in the U.S. and internationally and the exposure to litigation and/or regulatory actions. Merck and Schering-Plough undertake no obligation to publicly update any forward-looking statement, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise. Additional factors that could cause results to differ materially from those described in the forward-looking statements can be found in Merck’s 2008 Annual Report on Form 10-K, Schering-Plough’s 2008 Annual Report on Form 10-K and each company’s other filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) available at the SEC’s Internet site (www.sec.gov).
