Edgar Filing: CENTURY BANCORP INC - Form SC 13D/A

February 15, 2006

The Board of Directors
c/o Marshall M. Sloane
Chairman of the Board
Century Bancorp, Inc.
400 Mystic Avenue
Medford, MA 02155

Dear Members of the Board of Directors;

I am writing to express our group's disappointment over the continued poor performance of the bank, to relate to you a summary of our conversations with two additional potential merger partners that would welcome the opportunity to pursue such discussions with the independent board, and to share some observations about management's posture toward investors. In addition, we again request the opportunity to meet with the independent board to discuss these issues and the management succession plan at Century in greater detail. The lack of a real response from the board to our previous letters is disturbing.

Since our most recent letter, Century Bancorp has reported two awful quarters. The first time we wrote to you we expressed our dismay over 2005's first quarter earnings. This has been followed by three successively worse quarters. It is hard for us to imagine that the independent board is not appalled and even outraged at the dichotomy between what Marshall Sloane told shareholders to look forward to in his annual letter at the beginning of the year and what has actually transpired. In fact, we suspect that he painted an even rosier picture for the board since any public opinion that he expressed was likely a conservative scenario. 2005 was a year in which Century Bank would "excel" and "thrive," in the words of management. We cannot reconcile those terms with the financial performance for 2005 and imagine that the board cannot do so either. We can only imagine what the Sloanes will write about in this year's shareholder letter. It will be interesting to see how deeply the state of denial runs and whether or not there is any awareness of the value destruction that is occurring at Century.

More recently, Marshall Sloane blamed the yield curve for Century's problems, yet we see bank after bank reporting record earnings while dealing with the very same yield curve pressures facing Century. We think that it is now obvious that it is the Sloanes' management that is responsible for this difference since, in our view, Century has the advantage of a superior funding base yet doesn't come close to its peers in profitability. Furthermore, we are greatly troubled by the year over year decline in core deposits at Century. Core deposits are what make Century so valuable, and now they seem to be running off. We hope that the board is embarrassed by a 0.31% ROA and a 4.9% ROE for the fourth quarter. In fact, one must ask whether it even makes financial sense to go through the exercise and risk of running the bank when the return is so low.

We are also concerned about management and its responsibilities to the company's shareholder-owners. After an earlier letter denying our request to meet with the independent board members, we read in your June 10th press release that "Century Bank is committed to listening to any shareholder concerns regarding the ongoing operations and management of the Bank." We recently spoke with an investor that met with Marshall Sloane, Barry Sloane, Jonathan Sloane, and Paul Cusick at Century's headquarters in Medford. This investor told us that the conversation was civil until he questioned some aspects of Century management's strategy and suggested that the activist shareholders had raised some valid points. The investor told us that Marshall Sloane became visibly upset and simply said "Sell your stock." Marshall then said "Interview over" and ended the meeting by walking away from the meeting table without a word. An apologetic Paul Cusick was left to walk the investor to the door and stammer an explanation for the Sloanes' behavior. No CEO, no matter what percentage of the bank he owns, should be so rude and unprofessional in dealing with a shareholder-owner. If the Sloanes want to run the bank as though it were private, they should buy back the shares that they don't control for a fair price. Independent directors are supposed to be representing shareholders' interests at the company and we hope that you are as outraged as we are that the Sloanes would treat a shareholder that way.

We continue to believe that there would be a line of buyers were Century to explore a sale of the bank. As you might imagine, we have meetings with many bank management teams as a normal course of our business. While the typical discussion (unlike one with Century management) involves updates on strategy, specific growth and expense targets, and other performance metrics, we have encountered two managements that expressed to us an interest in meeting with the independent board of Century in order to pursue merger discussions. This is in addition to the bank CEO that we referenced in an earlier letter. Both of these managements told us that they had put out feelers to various Century executives but that the response has been one that suggests no interest in pursuing such discussions. In case the independent board is not aware, a non-responsive management team at Century will certainly prevent any formal offer and thus make it seem as though there is little, if any, interest in the bank by acquirers. We hope that the board is aware that, in the genteel world of banking where hostile takeovers are virtually non-existent, an outwardly disinterested CEO is more than enough to deter potential acquirers.

As we have stated many times, we believe that there are several other banks that would be willing to pay a significant premium to the current stock price for Century Bank. Contrast this with the updated outlook of Gerard Cassidy of RBC Capital Markets. Mr. Cassidy, an independent research analyst who is not in any way affiliated with our group, has reduced his fundamental price target for Century shares to $12 per share. Mr. Cassidy cites the declines in net interest income and higher expenses as reasons for his lowered expectations. We again ask what board member (indeed, what rational person) would prefer to see a $12 share price instead of the $46-$57 per share range we have previously estimated to be Century's value to an acquiring bank.

Finally, we read with great interest that Barry and Jonathon Sloane will be nominated by their father Marshall to be the Co-CEOs after Marshall's retirement. We can only note that the decline in Century's profitability and franchise value under their stewardship as co-chief operating officers has been truly breathtaking. We wonder how the board will respond to this nomination and how wide a search will be done for alternative and more effective candidates. Is it possible that, of all the potential CEO candidates out there, that the Sloane sons are the most qualified for the job? This is an opportunity for the board to show the investment community whether Century is run for the interests of the employment of the Sloane family or as a publicly traded institution owned by shareholders that are represented by truly independent directors.

We hope that the board wishes to learn more about our conversations with potential partners that are eager to express their interest in acquiring Century to the board. We also hope that you would be willing to explain your thinking about remaining independent with extremely low profitability metrics instead of taking a large premium for our company. Lastly, we are eager to hear what steps are being taken to find a suitable successor to Marshall Sloane who has demonstrated the capability to restore Century's profitability and increase shareholder value. Thus, in closing, we again call on the independent board members to meet with us to discuss the above issues.

We will soon file a 13D statement with the SEC with this letter attached as an exhibit. We look forward to your response in regard to accommodating our request for a meeting with the independent directors.

Sincerely,

Edgar Filing: CENTURY BANCORP INC - Form SC 13D/A
