Date: July 31, 2001

This filing contains forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Such statements include, but are not limited to, (i) statements about the benefits of the merger between First Union Corporation and Wachovia Corporation, including future financial and operating results, cost savings, enhanced revenues, and accretion to reported earnings that may be realized from the merger; (ii) statements with respect to First Union's and Wachovia's plans, objectives, expectations and intentions and other statements that are not historical facts; and (iii) other statements identified by words such as "believes", "expects", "anticipates", "estimates", "intends", "plans", "targets", "projects" and similar expressions. These statements are based upon the current beliefs and expectations of First Union's and Wachovia's management and are subject to significant risks and uncertainties. Actual results may differ from those set forth in the forward-looking statements.

The following factors, among others, could cause actual results to differ materially from the anticipated results or other expectations expressed in the forward-looking statements: (1) the risk that the businesses of First Union and Wachovia will not be integrated successfully or such integration may be more difficult, time-consuming or costly than expected; (2) expected revenue synergies and cost savings from the merger may not be fully realized or realized within the expected time frame; (3) revenues following the merger may be lower than expected; (4) deposit attrition, operating costs, customer loss and business disruption following the merger, including, without limitation, difficulties in maintaining relationships with employees, may be greater than expected; (5) the ability to obtain governmental approvals of the merger on the proposed terms and schedule; (6) the failure of First Union's and Wachovia's stockholders to approve the merger; (7) competitive pressures among depository and other financial institutions may increase significantly and have an effect on pricing, spending, third-party relationships and revenues; (8) the strength of the United States economy in general and the strength of the local economies in which the combined company will conduct operations may be different than expected resulting in, among other things, a deterioration in credit quality or a reduced demand for credit, including the resultant effect on the combined company's loan portfolio and allowance for loan losses; (9) changes in the U.S. and foreign legal and regulatory framework; and (10) adverse conditions in the stock market, the public debt market and other capital markets (including changes in interest rate conditions) and the impact of such conditions on the combined company's capital markets and asset management activities. Additional factors that could cause First Union's and Wachovia's results to differ materially from those described in the forward-looking statements can be found in First Union's and Wachovia's reports (such as Annual Reports on Form 10-K, Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q and Current Reports on Form 8-K) filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission and

Charlotte Observer Op Ed
By Ken Thompson

Mergers are often about getting bigger. The proposed friendly combination of First Union and Wachovia is about getting better.

Let me tell you why.

At First Union, we understand that people make things happen. That's very important to us. So we are committed to making the new Wachovia a place where the most talented people want to work, where our customers and communities know we'll always act in their best interests and where shareholders will see enduring value. That is why we believe a First Union/Wachovia combination is the right team for North Carolina, the right team for Charlotte and the best team in the financial services industry.

I've spent the better part of my life in North Carolina, and I love calling Charlotte home. I'm proud of our city and amazed at the progress we've made over the past several years. I'm also proud that First Union - the company where I've worked for 25 years - has helped contribute to that progress.

Edgar Filing: WACHOVIA CORP/ NC - Form 425

First Union and Wachovia are a unique strategic fit. We've grown up together and have competed side-by-side. We have long admired each other's strengths and recognize the potential of a First Union/Wachovia combination. Both Bud Baker and I realize the new Wachovia will be a strong and lasting anchor for North Carolina and an East Coast powerhouse positioned to serve our 19 million customers better than ever.

With the First Union/Wachovia merger, Charlotte keeps the headquarters of the combined company and becomes home to the fourth largest financial institution in the country. That means more jobs with excellent benefits. This leads to continued economic development and even greater civic involvement from the new Wachovia employees who have already done so much to help our communities succeed.

When our companies come together as one team, the effect on people throughout Charlotte and the Southeast will be tremendous. As the new Wachovia, we'll volunteer more than a million hours of our time to the education of children in our communities. We'll provide more than 55,000 small business loans to help entrepreneurs get started. And we'll support the neighborhoods we serve with $35 billion in community lending and investments over the next five years.

Most of all, we believe our combination will be good for customers. We want to continue providing the excellent service our customers deserve. The most important decision we made was to adopt a three-year timeframe to implement this merger. This pace allows us to gain customer input and do things right the first time, which ultimately means better service for our customers. Our goal is clear: We do not want to lose one customer as a result of this merger.

Finally, a First Union/Wachovia combination will have the products and the size to grow profits, which translates into direct economic benefits for our home state - not to mention the thousands of shareholders who will benefit from a higher stock price and greater dividends.

We've had enormous support from our customers, employees, friends in the community and this city; my colleagues and I thank each of you for that. We look forward to the benefits the new Wachovia will bring all of us.

Provides Update On Merger Progress

Charlotte - At its annual meeting today, First Union Corporation announced that its shareholders have approved the company's proposed merger of equals with Wachovia Corporation. Of those shareholders voting, more than 95 percent voted for the merger.

"We are very pleased to receive this strong support from First Union shareholders," said Ken Thompson, chairman and chief executive officer. "We believe the Wachovia/First Union combination - the new Wachovia - will create a company that is well positioned for profitable growth. We have made significant progress toward completing the regulatory approval process, and we look forward to seeing the results from the Wachovia shareholder meeting later this week," Thompson said. Wachovia shareholders have not yet voted and the merger is subject to their approval. Wachovia's shareholder meeting is scheduled for Friday, August 3.

Thompson also noted that First Union's strong second quarter performance - which surpassed consensus forecasts from Wall Street - indicated that measures taken to focus on core growth businesses, increase customer satisfaction levels and control costs are taking effect. "In the second quarter, all of our core businesses performed well, led by the General Bank," Thompson told First Union shareholders. "At the same time, we reduced nonperforming assets and increased our capital. Our strategic repositioning is now complete, and our unrelenting attention to improving customer service levels is showing substantive, quantifiable results," Thompson added.

In other annual meeting business, First Union shareholders ratified the selection of KPMG LLP as outside auditors and approved a new management incentive plan linked to creation of
